Summer internships at Reuters

HANDS-ON JOURNALISM EXPERIENCE

Reuters offers talented students and graduates with a strong interest in journalism an opportunity to learn at the world’s largest international multimedia news agency. Interns will work in a fast-paced newsroom with some of our most experienced journalists.

THE JOB
The paid internships are a crash course in hands-on business, political and general news reporting.

Interns will receive formal training before they start work. Every intern will report to a senior editor and be assigned a journalist mentor who will provide advice and guidance. Interns are expected to write regularly and deliver in-depth stories during their assignment.

Interns who excel may be considered for other opportunities, including entry-level reporting roles.

THE CANDIDATE
• You have journalism experience.
• You’re passionate about news and are a quick learner.
• You have a strong background in journalism, economics, business, law, accounting, languages or computer science.
• You are fluent in English and possess excellent writing and communication skills. Additional languages are an asset.
• You have good mathematics and data skills.

Please note: Applicants must have the legal right to work in the location to which they apply. The program does not cover relocation, housing or visa costs.

Applications are due by December.
Internships run from June to August.

“The Reuters internship was nothing short of vital for me in developing my career in journalism. I learned how to develop sources, write clearly and work fast and accurately to break news, while learning from editors and other reporters who took the time to guide me.”
