Important points for the Brokerage houses on this page are indicated with distinct colors:

Yes - Appears on the document and captured by OCR. N/A - Does not appear on the document.

Brokerage house in blue color:

- When the binder qualifies for Detail transactions without 8949 option, OCR will capture all the information related to Schedule D transactions from the document.
- When the binder qualifies for Summary transactions without 8949 option, Summary transactions with 8949 option, and Detail transactions with 8949 option, OCR will capture Detail information of only Proceeds, Cost, Term code (if applicable) and Form 8949 type from the document.

Brokerage house in pink color:

- When the binder qualifies for Summary transactions, OCR will capture all the information related to covered/non-covered from the 1099-B summary and NOT from the Realized gains/loss statement summary. This is because the realized gain/loss schedule does not provide summary information of covered/non-covered transactions.
- When the binder qualifies for Detail transactions, OCR will capture all the information related to covered/non-covered from its respective schedules, i.e. 1099-B details from 1099-B statement and Realized gain/loss detail from realized gain/loss statement.

Brokerage house in brown color:

OCR captures data from both Form 1099-B and Realized Gain/Loss statements, however information from the statements that are highlighted in green cell will be exported to the tax software.

In such type of broker statements summary information for the Foreign Ordinary as well as Qualified dividend is provided, hence the system will capture the total amount of Foreign Ordinary and Qualified Dividend as Foreign Source Income. If summary is not available, then the system will capture the Foreign Source Income from the Details of Dividend Income.
