

THOMSON REUTERS DATASTREAM ECONOMICS

Thomson Reuters Datastream Economics integrates in-depth economic coverage, consistent data history and critical timeliness on one platform with unparalleled financial market data. The database provides comprehensive coverage of national economies, from the market moving indicators to fully detailed economic and financial accounts. Presented on a platform with extensive analytics and charting capabilities, the overall toolset is uniquely powerful.

COMPREHENSIVE CONTENT

The Economic content features 3.6 million time series from national and international agencies, associations, and research institutions - extensive content that covers historical and forecast statistics, developed and emerging markets, macro and micro statistics.

Thomson Reuters is committed to sourcing data directly from primary, timely, domestic sources for 124 countries. Over 711,300 time series are available from 1000 such agencies. European Area and Union coverage from Eurostat, the European Central Bank, and European Commission is exhaustive, totalling over 1.5 million series.

The remaining nations are profiled by data collected from international agencies and other secondary sources. Much of the data is adjusted for comparability across geographies by sources such as the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, OECD, and the Bank for International Settlements.

Forecasts for over 400 concepts are available from Oxford Economics, the Economist Intelligence Unit, Consensus Economics, and official international agencies.

Datastream Economics provides consistent histories which extend back 35 or more years for G7, 20 or more for major markets, and 5 to 10 for emerging nations.

Thomson Reuters gives you the data and analysis needed to track and respond to economic factors that move markets and affect your business. National, international, and enterprise accounts detail financial, consumer, government, and industrial sectors.
